Meetings/Classrooms

John McHugh, Dean at the Lincoln Campus of Gaston College, possesses a variety of skills and experiences that he is willing to share with local entrepreneurs in order to help them achieve their dreams. John is a former small business owner himself having operated a building maintenance company for approximately sixteen years in both Gaston and Lincoln counties. John founded the company and built it up to employ between fifteen and twenty employees at any given time. He left the business to focus on his career in education.

In his six years at Gaston College, John has spent most of that time in supervisory roles. Having gone from being a sole-proprietor to supervising many employees, John knows first-hand the importance of good supervision. He is happy to share his insights with you about how to hire, train, motivate, and work with good employees.

John has hands-on experience in marketing, working with employees, cash flow solutions, payroll, business growth models, and business ownership. John is willing to share his knowledge of a small business startup in order to help you to fulfill your dream of entrepreneurship and/or business ownership.
